

Nat. Guard Troops Arriving This Week

ADVANCE DETACHMENTS HERE TODAY; MAIN BODY SATURDAY.

It is always a big event when the men of the Michigan National guard begin to arrive, and the trains carrying thousands of Michigan's youth begin pulling into the city. While already there is much activity at Camp Grayling, today will mark the arrival of some of the advance detachments, and Saturday will find the main body arriving.

Lt. Col. LeRoy Pearson, quartermaster general and chief of staff, and his assistants, set up offices here first of the week. The offices were moved here from Lansing and will remain here until some time after the middle of August.

Among others already in camp are advance detachments from the 107th regiment; the 107th Medical regiment; special troops; 63rd brigade; and 119th field artillery. On July 9th all regiments above mentioned will arrive. Troop movements will be made by motor and train. The M. N. G. air squadron will not be in camp this year, as their training period was filled earlier in Florida.

Changes In Camp.

A few changes have been made in the camp this year. A new bath house has been constructed for use in the 125th Infantry regiment area. The officers' mess hall for use by the 119th field artillery has been enlarged to accommodate the reserve officers who have been ordered here for training. The Company troop and battery mess halls are spic and span with new coats of paint. The roads thruout the camp have all undergone repaving and are in excellent condition. According to Lt. Col. LeRoy Pearson, the camp is in excellent condition and is ready for the oncoming guardsmen.

The commissary department, under command of Capt. Roy Sindlinger and Capt. John Erkes, is receiving supplies and is ready to dispense them to the guardsmen.

Sometime during the encampment the several units will take part in a grand pageant that is to be staged. The date for this event has not yet been fully determined but will be announced later. This promises to be a grand event and is looked forward to by civilians as well as guardsmen. This is planned for the purpose of introducing thrilling and spectacular entertainment for the men of the guard. Some novel floats and exhibits are promised for this event.

Mich. Editors Enjoy Mullett Lake Outing

SPEND 3 DAYS IN SUMMER OUTING

When Manager Ed Maloney of Topinabee hotel, Mullett Lake invited the Michigan editors to spend their outing at his place this summer, he didn't realize just how big a job he was undertaking. The attendance was over 300 and it taxed the capacity of his hotel.

The first day (Thursday) began in a drizzling rain. But with newspaper publishers, that doesn't mean a thing. There is always good weather when editors get together, and this time was no exception.

Top-In-A-Bee hotel is noted for its hospitality and the air was filled with a welcome spirit. The outing committee had done a great job and every hour of the three days was filled with activity. The rains subsided the first evening and the next morning found the pencil pushers on golf courses, tennis courts, and other yard sports, out fishing, swimming, boating, or perhaps enjoying indoor games. Everyone was so busy that Landlord Maloney could hardly get them to stop long enough for lunches.

The Indian River, Mullett Lake and Cheboygan golf courses were available and every one was well patronized. Some hot contests were staged and a lot of money changed hands in the playoffs.

For entertainment Thursday night, after dinner Bingo was the program with everyone sitting in free and some real prizes were "won". Friday night President Chet Howell presided during the dinner hour and at a program that followed. For this occasion the Cheboygan editors and other Cheboygan citizens had planned

Enthusiastic Over Wolverine Boys' State

WOLVERINE BOYS' STATE WAS BIG SUCCESS

Reporting the activities of Michigan's first annual Wolverine Boys' State which was held recently under the sponsorship of Michigan department American Legion, John Henry Peterson and Keith Bowen are most enthusiastic over having been privileged to attend. They were the lucky boys from Grayling chosen by Grayling Post 106 and the Kiwanis club, who bore the expenses.

On June 16th the opening day they appeared at M.S.C. campus where a medical examination was first in order, then registration, followed by the boys being separated to represent cities and counties, all under advisors from Michigan Law school.

The next day Friday, was acquainted day. Later two political parties were formed the Trojans and the Athenians. Caucuses were held nominating the various state, county and city officers, and then campaigning was on in full swing up to Saturday, when the election was held and voting took place. Then the boys waited anxiously Saturday night for the returns.

On Sunday morning all attended church services, and in the afternoon the Lansing Legion Post put on a fine program and there were hosts of visitors on the campus.

Monday morning, the state, county and city governments with the men elected to the various offices began to function and each day this was the routine for the remaining days. However during afternoons the boys enjoyed their favorite athletic sport and each evening an assembly program was held, when the boys were privileged to listen to talks by Governor Murphy and various other state officers, and one evening the boys were honored with a speech by Carl Smith, Michigan state commander of the American Legion.

A Glee club was formed from among the boys under the leadership of Eddie Osborne and they appeared in several broadcasts. During the ten days John Henry was a resident of Washington City and Keith of Polk City.

On Friday the boys spent the day in Lansing visiting the capitol and the chosen Governor from among the boys together with his cabinet occupied the Governor's seat in the capitol building for the day. That day they also attended a show entitled "Of Human Hearts" a picture of Civil war times and Abe Lincoln.

On Saturday the last day, awards and trophies were given out and each boy was asked to leave a letter telling what they had gained, during Boys' State, or to give any constructive criticism of same.

This report shows that it was a very fine program and the American Legion of Michigan is to be commended for its Boys' State which is to be an annual affair.

a delightful floor show. This was followed by a formal ball in the hotel dining room. During the afternoon of that day the ladies enjoyed contract and auction bridge where some very fine prizes were given.

Not to mention the music furnished by this elegant hotel would be a great mistake. Here was an orchestra playing for every function during the several days and evenings. It had no name so we can't tell who they were. Nine charming young ladies, each with high musical ability made up one of the most delightful musical organizations it has been our privilege to hear. There were three harps, several violins, xylophone, double bass, cello, and reed instruments. It was a grand combination and beautiful music. Vocal solos, trios and ensemble were intermingled with the numbers. These young ladies are just out of musical colleges and have taken a contract to play at Hotel Top-In-A-Bee for this summer. Their music is most inspiring and, besides, the group was easy to look at. Their director conferred a great honor upon the editors assembled by asking them to select a name for the orchestra. We haven't heard final decision, but don't let that keep you away from Top-In-A-Bee for these young ladies will be there all summer to entertain you, and Ed Maloney is there to greet you.

Audubons Had Successful Campout

AUDUBON SOCIETY HAD SUCCESSFUL CAMPOUT HERE

June 28, 1938

Mr. R. A. Wright, President, Grayling Chamber of Commerce, Grayling, Michigan.

Dear Mr. Wright:

After several conferences lately we have compiled the official Campout list of birds seen at Grayling Decoration Day week end. The two longest lists of positively identified birds were turned in by Dr. Lawrence H. Walkinshaw and Mrs. N. Theodore Peterson of Battle Creek. The enclosed list is a composite of those two.

A few species were seen on the way to Grayling and probably could not be found right in the vicinity of your city. Dr. Walkinshaw spent one week end up there continuing study after the campout and also spent a week of his vacation there this past week making further studies and photographs. He reported to me yesterday that he found the rather rare Lincoln's Sparrows and an eagle's nest out by Lake Margrethe. He expects to return again that way in the near future.

The Campout was a huge success from our standpoint and many interesting facts were established in the short period that we were there. Dr. Josselyn VanTyne, ornithologist of the University, spent some time there the week following the campout studying nests and birds which we located. We had a few more than 100 at the campout. If it hadn't been so very stormy in many parts of the state we would have had many more. Many registered and paid their registration fee but did not come for they were afraid that we were having as bad weather as they were.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank you again for the many courtesies extended to us in making the plans and carrying out the activities of the campout. We were much impressed by the genuine hospitality and purposeful activity of your little city.

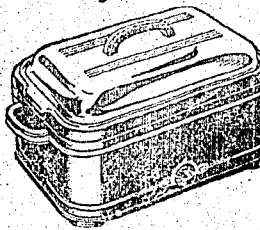

Very sincerely yours,
Edward M. Brigham Jr.

Lansing—That federal pump-priming for national recovery is also going to be vote-priming for Governor Frank Murphy in Michigan this fall is rather generally conceded today at the capitol city.

Even republican hopefuls are looking a bit wistful, if not downright envious, at the forthcoming gush of millions from Washington, D. C.

Yes, the mad scramble is on for gifts from the Great White Father. Michigan wants to get its share, as its taxes to the federal government have been more than double the funds it has obtained. Governor Murphy proclaims that he is going to "sit down" on the White House step until Michigan gets all the millions it can grab.

As we pointed out in this column one month ago, the federal spending campaign for 1938 will be no small factor in the forthcoming election. Let's look at the latest developments.

U. S. Funds for Bridge

At Port Huron where he surveyed the Blue Waters international bridge for the first time, Governor Murphy announced that federal funds for a bridge at the Straits of Mackinac was practically assured, that President Roosevelt was "enthusiastic" and that steps would be taken at once to set up a new straits bridge authority including a "nationally-known engineer" as its advisor.

Among the pet dreams of the tourist leaders in Michigan is a bridge at the Straits.

If federal money could be obtained at once to make possible the bridge undertaking, the state administration would have a nice bright red feather in its hat. At present the resort business men all the way from Berrien county to Gogebic county are miffed at the governor's reform crusade which has halted a rich harvest of tourist nickles, dimes and quarters into slot machines.

Many a resort owner has paid his taxes and insurance with slot machine receipts contributed by outstate visitors. And, too, there is still grumbling over the professed inability of the four tourist associations to obtain an interview with the state executive at Lansing.

The Straits bridge offers an ideal truce.

Straits Traffic Mounts

Back of all the pre-campaign speech-making—for actually the fall campaign has not yet begun—is a growing realization in Michigan that the proposal for a Straits bridge is supported by some rather convincing facts.

Take the following eye-openers: During the 15 years of ferry operation by the state highway department, traffic has increased from 10,000 vehicles in 1910 to nearly 275,000 last year. In five years the ferry fleet has been doubled. At the present rate of growth Michigan's motor vehicle is due to double within the next 15 years; the number of motor vehicles on public highways is due to increase 40 per cent.

Aerial photographs taken one year ago of the July Fourth traffic jam at the Straits shows a continuous line of waiting cars nearly ten miles long! Happy memories of Michigan as the nation's leading vacation land may depend upon the peak load ferry service at the Straits. Yet, it is simply impractical to provide enough ferry boats to take care of holiday rushes.

Staggering Relief Load

George Granger, state relief administrator, raised some eyebrows the other day when he announced that approximately 75,000 of the 104,200 persons in Michigan now getting direct relief are unemployables.

So matter how times improve Michigan will have to care for 75,000 citizens who cannot work, Granger reminds.

The problem of unemployment relief is staggering enough, as many industrial centers find as they scrape treasuries for funds and implore aid from Lansing and Washington. Lansing itself has dipped into 1939 appropriations and special funds for $6,500,000 relief cash.

Taxpayers will hear more of the Michigan problem of unemployed and unemployables, as a referendum will be held in November on the state welfare act.

Deficit $13,800,000

One year ago the state legislature adjourned, leaving an $18,000,000 deficit in the governor's lap.

The generous law-makers, having done a little wealth distributing of their own, had the thoughtfulness to invest the governor with powers of a financial dictator. Harold Smith, budget director, was told to trim expenditures.

The other day the prospect of the deficit, in advance of an official announcement, was given at $13,800,000. Some progress has been made, it will be agreed, in reducing a deficit from $18,000,000 to $13,800,000.

According to an Associated Press story from Washington, Michigan and Oklahoma are the only two states in 48 which are going further into the red. Only a half dozen states report budget deficits at all. Oklahoma reports $21,450,000; New York, $10,200,000 as compared with $9,428,496 in 1937; California, $7,500,000. Surplus states include Pennsylvania with $92,695,000; Indiana, $24,000,000; Illinois $19,124,000; Minnesota, $1,250,000; Wisconsin, "pay-as-you-go"; and Ohio and Rhode Island where state laws require a balance.

Simultaneously with the spending program at Washington, you may expect to hear of an economy program at Lansing.

How far the economies will go is something else.

With relief of unemployed and unemployables and an increased state deficit running side by side at the 1938 half-way mark, the tax problem again surges to the front. After all, the next session of the state legislature is only six months off.

"Half an Hour—Barcelona" a dramatic short story with today's strife for a stirring background by F. Britten Austin appears in This Week, the magazine with Sunday's Detroit News. Be sure to read it.

Big Massacre Blamed on Smell of Baking Bread

An Indian who wouldn't take no for an answer when he wanted bread and could smell it baking, precipitated one of the bloodiest Indian massacres in Michigan's history, says a Byron (Mich.) correspondent in the Detroit Free Press.

As a result the little town of Byron, settled in 1825, was wiped out and every family—except one—slaughtered. The one family was that headed by a miller named Smith.

The Indians refused to harm Smith because he had taken one of their chiefs who was severely injured into his home and cared for him until he recovered.

The massacre resulted when the husband of the woman who refused to give bread to the Indian walked into the house and shot him dead. The Indians demanded immediately that the killer be turned over to them for punishment. They threatened to kill and scalp every settler and burn their homes unless this were done.

In general the settlers felt that the killing had not been justified, but they stubbornly refused to submit one of their members to the Indians for torture. They sent a runner to get a company of soldiers from the fort at Detroit.

That night, Smith, who had been confined to bed because of an illness, heard guns fired, piercing cries of agony and the roar of flames consuming his neighbors' log cabins. He rushed from bed to the door. A blanketed Indian told him to go back to bed.

Smith attempted to go to the help of his friends through a back window. Another Indian barred his way. Imprisoned in his cabin he watched the destruction of the village.

The next day a squad of soldiers arrived. They found the village reduced to piles of charred logs, and heaps of hot ashes covered by the bodies of the victims, with Smith's family the only living beings.

Young of Some Animals

Weigh Little When Born

It is claimed that new born opossums weigh about four grains as compared with the mother's weight of ten pounds. The young are born with well-developed forelegs that enable them to crawl into the maternal pouch immediately after birth, where they remain for some time.

It is stated that the kangaroo perhaps heads the list in this respect. The mother, sometimes taller than a man, gives birth to young that are less than one inch long. Both the opossum and kangaroo are the best-known members of pouched animals, called marsupials.

The young of the common black bear, that are born in hibernation, weigh about ten ounces as compared with the mother's weight of two hundred pounds or more.

These three animals undoubtedly produce the smallest young in comparison to the weight of the parents of any wild animals.

Virginia white-tailed deer give birth to fawns weighing about four pounds while the mother tips the scale at 100 to 150 pounds.

About the Swastika

The swastika, oldest of all Aryan symbols, is definitely pre-Christian and many specimens of it have been found in the diggings of old Troy. From its rough likeness to a wheel it is associated by some with the solar motion and early worship of the sun, though the most important of its attributes, in ancient usage, is its character as a charm, a sign of benediction, of long life and good luck. It is the sacred symbol of one Buddhist sect, and from time immemorial has been known to all peoples of Asia. The fact that it was not unknown to the American Indian is held to point to early communication between the hemispheres. The word, swastika, says the Detroit News, derives from the Sanskrit "su" meaning well, and "asti" which means being. On the bust of Apollo in Vienna's famed museum of historical art is a large and unmistakable swastika, which bears out the supposed solar significance, and identifies that god, perhaps, as the first of the Austrian Nazis.

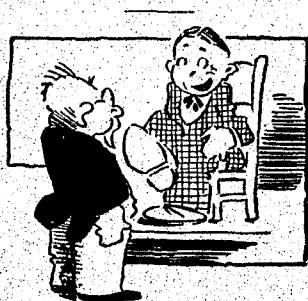

Search by Smell

Some authorities assert that reptiles employ the sense of smell to locate their kind, especially at the approach of the hibernating season. Observations on newts and allied creatures have shown that they nose about in a manner which strongly indicates search by smell. Perhaps the greatest trackers among the smaller animals are members of the cat and weasel families. A mink can follow the trail of a rabbit even after it is an hour old and will tenaciously stick to it until the prey is finally run down.

Alchemy a Mystery

The alchemists or chemists of the Middle Ages were obsessed with the problems of the transmutation of metals, the search for the elixir of life and the universal solvent. It is hard to find their records of discoveries, if any, for theirs was a secret art and they left few written records; what they did leave in writing is in language so mysterious as to be almost impossible of interpretation to us.

HONK, HONK

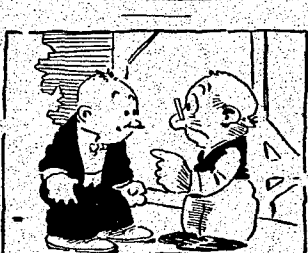

Judge—What was your motive when you ran over that woman?
Motorist—Nothing, your honor, but gasoline!

THAT MODERN BOY

Mother—Mary, is your caller a young man of economical habits?
Mary—Decidedly, mother. He insists that we use but one chair to keep from wearing the furniture and always turns out the light to save electricity.

VERSATILE

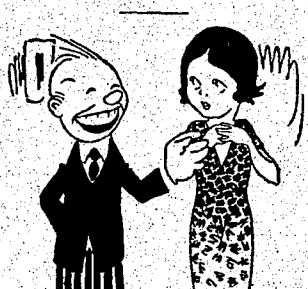

"A wonderful actor, you say?"
"Yes, he played Hamlet and played the devil at the same time."

NOT SO GOOD

Returning Native—I'm surprised to hear that Bess is a widow. Has she been a widow long?
Native—Oh, no, but much longer than she expected.

JUDGE AND JURY

Tom—Is stealing a kiss grand larceny or petit larceny?
Jane—In most cases it's just grand.

NOTHING ON HER

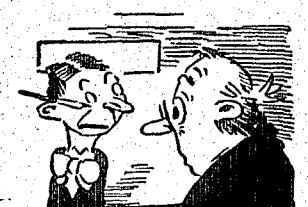

"My sister says she wouldn't marry the best man living."
"My sister ain't particular that way, either."

EVERYBODY DOES

Maid—It's no use, ma'am, I am leavin'. I can't stand yer husband.
Mrs. H.—It's a pity, Sarah, that I couldn't have selected a husband to suit you.
Maid—Sure, ma'am, we all makes mistakes.

IN THE RIGHT CLASS

Bookkeeper—Shall I figure the thousand dollars we paid to Councilman Grabitall among the overhead expenses?
Boss—Overhead? No. Put it with the underhand expenses.

When Elephant Is in "Mouth"

At certain seasons, domesticated elephants suffer from a disease called "mush," and then become fully as dangerous as the rogue elephant of the jungle. When an elephant is "in mush," a white spot appears on his temple between his eye and his ear where there is a little hole in his head. From this hole, fluid oozes out until the termination of the illness, which is sometimes a matter of 60 or 90 days. An elephant "in mush" suffers such intense pain that its mind is affected.

Stage Superstitions

An actress must find or have a rabbit's foot given her; it is fatal to buy one. It is bad luck to whistle in the dressing room or put shoes on a shelf. An umbrella opened over a head is, of course, the worst kind of a thing—but it is all right to open it downwards. Cats bring good luck, especially black ones. A potato in the pocket shields from misfortune. Next to breaking a mirror, bringing peacock feathers into the theater is a calamity, and many an actor will grow faint at the sight of one.

There's More to Sponge Than Just Mass of Cells

As you see it, a sponge is just a mass of little cells. When it is alive and breathing, it not exactly kicking, in its ocean bed, these cells are filled with jelly. It lives on the water it absorbs through its small pores, the waste water passing out through the large holes at the top.

During its infancy the sponge propels itself by the lashing of innumerable tiny hairs, but when it grows to maturity it settles down to be a real "stick-in-the-mud," says a writer in London Answers Magazine.

For centuries the true nature of the sponge baffled the scientific mind. It was once thought to be a vegetable and at one period was confidently accepted as a nest created by the worms which not unnaturally are often found in it. Not until a hundred years ago did the truth dawn on the scientist Robert Grant.

There are over 2,000 known varieties of sponges, of beautiful and fantastic shapes. One resembles a wineglass of enormous size, and others are commonly found in the form of cups, balls, fans, and discs. But the most fascinating of all are the "glass sponges" found in eastern waters.

Some have their skeletons of transparent flint covered with a delicate network of the finest lace, which in perfection of design rivals the efforts of the skilled lace-maker. Others again are made up of almost transparent gauze. All these are, of course, "show-pieces" which cannot be used in the bath.

Swallows Quicker Than Pigeons to Find Homes

According to experiments of zoologists, wild birds, especially swallows, have more of a sense of orientation and are thus better able to find their homes than even the long-hailed carrier pigeon. Swallows, starlings, and wrens could find their homes from distances as far as 1,200 miles.

The question of the homing of birds is really an ancient one, mention of the use of homing pigeons having been made in the writing of Anacreon about 550 B. C. During the reign of the caliphs, in the year A. D. 1200, the pigeon post received its highest development.

The use of the homing instinct of pigeons was not confined to post-office activities, states a writer in the Chicago Tribune. The development of the carrier pigeon for war purposes was put on a grandiose scale by the French just prior to the Franco-Prussian war.

When a bird properly trained is released in an unknown region, it first circulates about the place and then proceeds in the arc of a large circle until it strikes a landmark that it recognizes, and from then on it takes the short path home. This accounts for the fact, so often observed, that pigeons taken to great distances, if they return, do so only after taking an unusually long time. The fact that pigeons get about with difficulty at night also is explained, for landmarks are obscured.

Round Head—Optimistic

If your head tends to roundness both front and back, you are optimistic, resourceful, and speculative, according to a psychologist in Pearson's London Weekky. Your weak points are impulsiveness, recklessness, and a tendency to gamble. Work which entails risk and adventure, and an element of chance, will have a special appeal for you. You might make an excellent journalist. Many first-class athletes come from the "round head" class. In order to get the best out of yourself, you should curb your extreme speculative instinct. Investigate before you gamble, and do not take so many "long shots." Associate with people who are more cautious than yourself, but avoid the extremely cautious type.

HALF-COVERED?

Abbreviated covering is very stylish and very attractive—but if the young lady in the picture doesn't cover up after a short time she'll get burned from the rays of the sun. Millions of homeowners are similarly exposed by their present inadequate insurance protection. The tragic truth is that many will get burned before the fact is discovered. Is your insurance cut on the lines of a modern swim suit—or does it fully cover your property?

Before you answer that question, send for this convenient Property Insurance Check-Up with Inventory and Analysis Blanks and Instructions for arriving at a definite valuation of your home, its furnishings and your personal effects. A comparison with your present insurance will then reveal whether or not you have sufficient coverage, if you are over- or under-insured.

Donna Marie Perry celebrated her sixth birthday Tuesday afternoon by having six little friends in to spend the afternoon. Games were enjoyed by the tots, after which a delicious lunch was served on a prettily decorated table with the centerpiece a lovely birthday cake holding six candles.

Tuesday morning a four-point buck dashed through the woods onto M-93 and against the moving delivery truck of the Grayling Laundry, crashing into the front fender and side of the truck, and being killed instantly. John Henry Peterson, who was driving says he saw the deer, and tried to avoid it but it was too late.

Peter Petersen, in finding an exploded bullet that came through the screen and glass of an upstairs bedroom, located in the front part of their home, says he thinks it unsafe to even live within the city limits. The bullet came from a .22 rifle, and he says he thinks it high time that this promiscuous shooting be stopped in town.

Now that Grayling has a well stocked furniture store, it is up to the people of this community to do their purchasing here. We have learned that the inconvenience of being without a furniture store isn't so pleasant and is at times extremely provoking. Just as long as the Johnson store gives the people here good service and their prices are consistent, they deserve the support of the people at home. Let's show them our appreciation by giving them our patronage. Their opening day was last Saturday and they had many visitors and received many fine compliments on their lines. Mr. Johnson was in Saginaw Wednesday selecting a line of wall paper.

Blackie's fine plate glass show window, with its new flashy neon signs, was smashed into smithereens Saturday night when someone was unable to stop his car and ran into it.

Miss Audrey Miller of Jackson arrived first of the week to assume the duty of county visitor for old-age assistance. She succeeds Miss Kondratowicz of Gaylord. Miss McCann, district supervisor, and Miss Miller are looking for office space in Grayling. Grayling Merchants defeated Cadillac at Fife Lake 5-0, Sunday, Winterlee and Post the batteries. Winterlee allowed but four hits. On Monday playing Kalkaska where a Fourth of July celebration was being staged and the game was one of the features, the Kalkaskians carried off the honors, 7-1. May and Post were the battery Monday.

Fourth of July has a double significance for Rollo Failing as it is also his birthday anniversary. To celebrate the event there was a gathering of relatives and friends at the home of Otto Failing at Lake Margrethe for the day. There was a fine picnic dinner with all the trimmings and then in the evening the crowd drove to Roscommon to view the fireworks display.

A crash on the Lake road Saturday evening sent several Man-celona people to Mercy Hospital. The auto in which they were riding, crossed the intersection of M-93 and M-76 when it was struck by a truck belonging to the Michigan Guard. The latter was uninjured but the auto was wrecked. The occupants were badly bruised and cut by flying glass but all were able to return to their homes that night. First aid was administered at the hospital.

He—And her husband told me he had never had one.

Aaron Burr a Busy Man

in War and in Politics

Aaron Burr, born in Newark, N. J., February 6, 1756, was educated at the college of New Jersey (later called Princeton university), and was prominent in the war of the Revolution. In 1778 he resigned his commission as colonel, partly on account of ill health and partly through disappointment at not being promoted more rapidly. In 1782 he was admitted to the bar in Albany.

His progress in politics was rapid. In 1784 he was elected to the state legislature; in 1789 became attorney-general of the state, and was United States senator from 1791 until 1797. His efficiency in the presidential canvass of 1800 caused the friends of Jefferson to bring him forward for the vice presidency. An equal number of votes having been thrown for Jefferson and Burr, the election went into the house of representatives. On the thirty-sixth ballot Jefferson was chosen President and, in accordance with the constitutional provision, Burr became Vice President, serving from 1801 to 1805.

His unethical conduct in trying to defeat the candidate of his party caused him to lose his political influence, observes a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer. He ran for governor of New York and was defeated. The bitterness of that contest led to a duel, in 1804, between Burr and Alexander Hamilton, in which the latter was killed. Burr was later tried for treason on the charge of attempting to establish an empire which should embrace some of the southwestern states of the Union. He died September 14, 1836.

Small Tables for Homes

Used in Ancient Times

In Queen Elizabeth's time, tables for the most part were of the board and hinged-board type supported on trestles. The Elizabethans had little need for small tables in their mode of living, but with the development of printing, the reading of books at night required a readjustment of lighting and the small table was the result. We can trace through these small pieces of furniture the influence of the age of Queen Anne, the early Georges, the various French Louis periods and on through the empire, writes an authority in the Los Angeles Times.

The small table as a distinct article of furniture came into popularity in England about the middle of the Eighteenth century when the general use of tea, coffee and chocolate required furniture of this type. We find at this time the drop-leaf, octagonal, gateleg, triangular drop-leaf and tripod base, tile-top, tiny canestados, butterfly, lyre-motif and great number of other forms. Many of them were designed with plain or cabriole legs, having spade or claw-and-ball feet, plain or carved knees. We can safely say the general type was the tripod.

The small table was an important adjunct in the furnishing of a room and the American craftsmen used considerable ingenuity in fashioning them. A few American cabinet-makers modified the styles of Chippendale. The designs of Hepplewhite and Sheraton were generally copied by our cabinetmakers. Sheraton's designs were very popular. Card tables, work tables and Pembroke were common after 1800.

Wildlife Fears Scent of Man

Of all the scents, that of man is the most feared by wildlife, much more so than the sight of him, according to a writer in the Detroit News. And the reason for this is, of course, that throughout the ages all animals have been pursued by man and his smell, therefore, instantly brings to the surface the timeless dread of their greatest enemy. A deer, for instance, will often gaze upon a man in sheer curiosity, but will instantly flee upon getting wind of him. Since the beginning of time Nature has showered her greatest gifts into the lap of man, but on the whole he has shown only base ingratitude, and heedlessly continues to destroy and dangerously deplete her magnificent creations. In the open all senses must be mighty keen, and so Nature in her great wisdom has endowed her charges with faculties that will give them at least a fighting chance in a life that is always hard.

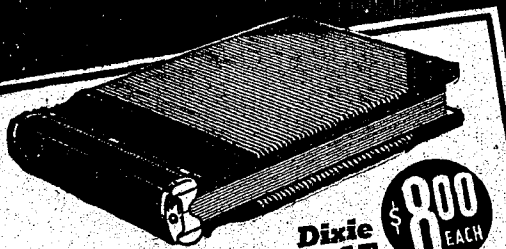

White Woman of the Genesee

Mary Jemison (1743-1843) was captured by Indians from her western Pennsylvania home when she was fifteen years old and lived with them the rest of her life. She married first a young Delaware warrior, and after his death, an old chief, Hiokato. After the American Revolution she was given a large tract of land on the Genesee. She leased much of it to white settlers and became noted for her kindness and philanthropy.

Top of Submerged Range

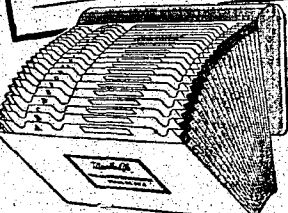

Like the other smaller islands of the West Indies, Jamaica is the very top of a submerged range of mountains, which rise out of the sea as the last vestiges of a remote age. The contour of the land was quite aptly described nearly 400 years ago by its discoverer, Columbus, who, in telling his queen, Isabella, about it, crumpled a piece of paper in his hand to make an improrptu relief-map.
